Married Comrades

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge is surprised by Mrs. Ticer's Mission to Farm.

MRS. TICER was not in sight when I descended the stairs, but Katie, lurking near the kitchen door, put her finger on her lips in a melodramatic fashion and beckoned me toward her.

"It's all right, Katie," I assured her in a low voice when I reached her side. "Mother Graham is showing Mrs. Underwood how to make daisies for her afghan, and that will keep her upstairs on the balcony for some time."

"Does she not see how her mother is so busy?" she asked. "No, I am sure she knows nothing of your bringing me that message."

"Thank all good saints!" she said fervently. "Me, I sure I going get merry devil from old vovvans. Oh! boose, please. I no mean talk like dot. Eet shoot slipped out."

"See that you don't do it again," I said with mechanical severity for probably the thousandth time in my years of association with my temperamental housewife. "But where is Mrs. Ticer?"

Katie giggled convulsively. "Me, I so 'fraid old vovvans coom downstairs and find her I park her in your little study off library. She in dere now."

"That was very sensible of you," I said. "I'll go directly to her, and I'm sure she'll be out of the house before Mother Graham comes down."

Nurse Disturbed
"Dot's best news I hear for week," Katie said impressively, and then she turned to her kitchen, and I to the side hall leading to my study.

The nurse stepped out of the library as I passed it. "I think I ought to tell you something about Mrs. Ticer," she whispered. "She came over today as usual to see your father and you. But there was something in the way she asked after your father that was different from usual. It was almost as if she suspected he wasn't there."

I debated with myself for an instant, and then resolved to tell her the truth.

"She knows he isn't there," I said quietly, and even her professional calm broke into a surprised exclamation.

"There were reasons why I had to tell her," I said, "but no other member of her family knows, and she is as safe as a church, even if her face is a bit transparent. I'll put her on her guard."

"You won't—!" the nurse began. "I shan't bring you into it at all," I said. "It will be a warning on general principles."

"Does she know that your uncle is to come here?" she asked. "Yes, she knows everything, and you won't need to pretend with her any longer. I will tell her when I see her that I have told you she knows."

"That will make things easier," she said gratefully. "But how about your mother-in-law, Mrs. Underwood and Katie? Will they all know she knows?"

"Mrs. Underwood knows everything there is to be known about anything in the farmhouse," I said. "But neither Mother Graham nor Katie must guess that Mrs. Ticer knows the secret about my father and his mother."

"Thanks," she said laconically. "Now I know where I stand, and how to act."

Madge Puzzled
"You always know that," I said, smiling at her, and went on toward the room where Mrs. Ticer awaited me.

But I stood for a long minute outside the door before I could muster up the courage to turn the knob. What was the reason behind her imperative summons of me? I knew that she would not have had me awakened from sleep, especially in the face of my mother-in-law's certain wrath, if she did not bear a message of tremendous importance.

My mind was still filled with the disquieting news she had given me only the night before—two sources of great anxiety the news of Jack Leslie's confederate and—more terrifying still—of the men in the abandoned shack above the farmhouse, spying on us through their glasses, and trying to find out the truth about my father. What fresh developments had occurred in either direction to bring her to such straits to the farmhouse?"

But it was something altogether different which had brought her. I learned that when having come to the room, I found her standing in the middle of the floor, patently too nervous to sit down, and holding a letter in her hands. She thrust it at me excitedly.

"It's from Marion," she said. (Copyright 1936 by K. F. S. Inc.)

Your Health

BY DR. K. A. COPELAND

Dermatitis Venenata.

This body of ours is subject to skin covering. There are various many annoying disturbances of its disorders given a general name, "dermatitis." This is really an inflammation of the skin and it can be caused by an external cause or by some internal disorder.

When the underlying cause is an internal disturbance, it may be difficult to detect it. For example, "eczema" is a chronic inflammation of the skin. It may result from an upset in the digestive system, the glandular system, or some other disorder within the body.

As I have said, certain skin disturbances may be due to some irritant reaching it from outside the body. Ivy poisoning is an example of this type. Many distressing inflammations come from exposure to some irritating substance.

"Dermatitis venenata" is the big name given a strange disease of the skin. It is caused by sensitivity to a certain Brazilian walnut wood. A recent outbreak of this ailment occurred in a large cabinet-making plant. After contact with the wood for several days, the workmen noticed that the skin of the hands became red. Pimples and blisters formed on the hands, forearms, face and neck. In a few cases the face became so swollen that the victim was unable to open the eyes. Other workmen complained of running eyes, running nose and sneezing.

Of course, this particular form of inflammation of the skin is an extremely rare condition. I mention it because many other irritations of the skin can be traced to contact with some unusual piece of wood, a particular article of clothing, or to some article of food or drink. This may prove to be a source of chronic irritation of the skin.

The unsuspecting victim believes he is afflicted with a chronic disorder of the skin such as eczema, psoriasis or another similar disease. At times the victim resorts to home treatment, using self-prescribed salves and ointments, hopeful that relief will be obtained.

Until the underlying cause is determined and removed, I would advise all my readers who are subject to chronic disorders of the skin to consult an expert. Bear in mind that self-medication is often false economy. At times it may aid in the prolongation of the disturbance. Often, indeed, the trouble is increased by the application of substances that are irritants rather than soothing.

Dr. Copeland is glad to answer inquiries from readers who send addressed stamped envelopes with their questions. Address him at 1115 N. Main St., Marion, Ohio. (Copyright, 1935, by K. P. S. Inc.)

"Boy, 16, To Rule."

Americans, reading of the death of King Fuad I of Egypt, are impressed chiefly with the fact he will be succeeded on an uncertain throne by Farouk, his son, a schoolboy 16 years old. If any one thing about politics is more evident to Americans than the general run of things, it is that no 16-year-old boy is capable of taking charge of any government. King Fuad, who had reached the ripe age of 68, was having more than an ordinary amount of trouble with Egyptian affairs. Son Farouk will have the same problems, but without the experience and background to deal with them. His third cousin will act as regent.

A few months ago the British kingship passed in the natural order of succession from beloved George V to his mature son, Edward, now reigning as Edward VIII. In that case the world agreed that the son was worthy of the trust; he was a man of experience and vision, whose whole life had been spent in preparation for an arduous task.

There is a good deal to be said for royalty, when the system works. Certainly one of the situations in which it falls to work most conspicuously is that of a boy falling heir to a man's job. To Egypt, to the lad who ascends the throne and to all governments with interests which will be affected by the bad government usually characteristic of a regency, sympathy is due.

Stocks and Socks.

What goes up, says the maxim, must eventually reverse its direction. What is inflated must be deflated. No matter how it is said, the idea applies to the stock market.

As though the morning-after headaches of October, 1929, were not enough warning, crowds of John Citizens appear to have been enjoying themselves getting on the ticker bandwagon—for wasn't the cunning little rascal racing away for the moon again? A steady descent for the last two weeks, climaxed by steep drops in one day of several blue chip offerings, may not shoot the ticker through the other end of the market thermometer, but it's calculated to be discouraging.

Experts agree they can't assign positive reasons for the debacle, but they point to such strange affairs as threatened devaluation of the franc, possibility of a European war and government-generated jitters in the business world. To observers whose judgment is not biased by possession of a stock exchange membership, such reasons are not sufficiently inclusive.

Two other explanations may well stand investigation. One, since John Citizen has not yet grasped the intricacies of gravity, he must be given another lesson. Two, President Roosevelt repeatedly has advised the public to read financial pages of their newspapers for evidences of recovery.

Cause No. 1 is shaking off the amateurs. Cause No. 2 is providing some of the humor readers customarily find in the comic section. It doesn't make sense—but does the stock market?

Swat That Lobbyist.

Enactment of legislation to curb lobbying is assured in the current session of congress by house approval of the Smith bill requiring registration of lobbyists and publicity concerning their activities. The senate, which passed last year a more drastic bill, is expected to approve the Smith proposal.

Presumably, passage of the bill would protect congressmen from lobbyists. It is a fact, however, that the only fully effective protection must be supplied in another way. If congressmen were as impervious to pressure as they say they think they should be, no anti-lobbying legislation would be needed to protect them.

In a strict sense, it is not lobbying at which they are aiming at all, but what they consider unfair propagandizing. The really powerful lobbies in Washington—labor, agriculture and veterans—apparently are in good standing. Other lobbies, the public utility lobby, for instance, are not in good standing. Certain congressmen who disagree with the interests represented by the unpopular lobbies are seeking to escape the pressure, which those lobbies have been able to exert on them.

Anti-lobbying legislation will be as effective as congressmen want it to be. Unfortunately there is a good deal of evidence indicating representatives and senators are not interested in resisting all lobbies, but only the lobbies which irritate them. It is difficult to believe, therefore, that the Smith bill, or any other bill which may be enacted, really should be hailed as an end to lobbying, a practice at least as old as the republic itself.

Big Business Boss.

In appointing Gen. Herman Wilhelm Goering virtual dictator over all matters concerning raw materials and foreign currencies Chancellor Hitler appears to be giving more than a Nazi window dressing to Germany's monetary operations.

Cabled stories report a widely current belief that the position of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, economic minister and president of the Reichsbank, is strengthened rather than weakened by the fact he will yield public authority to Gen. Goering. As proof of this belief it is pointed out that with the general embodiment of all Nazi virtues, as the mouthpiece for monetary announcements, criticism of the country's financial policy will be sharply curtailed. Dr. Schacht, it is assumed, will still be the mind behind the stage although Goering will speak the doctor's pieces.

Since Dr. Schacht is a banking expert and not at all a Nazi propagandist, it will be interesting to see whether the promotion of Gen. Goering will mean any substantial alteration in German monetary policies, particularly as far as grants to municipalities are concerned. Recently, proposed cuts in three grants evoked a flood of complaints from the local administrative bodies which are, on the whole, strongholds of the Nazi party. Chief significance of the general's appointment, therefore, may be that any criticism of financial policy announced by him will be construed as criticism of the party itself. Criticism, of course, is still verboten in Hitler's united Germany.

One After Another.

One by one cherished American legends are yielding before the onslaught of science and skepticism. No more, it is said, can George Washington, the cherry tree, and truthfulness be baked into one delectable pie for juvenile consumption, while it is also rumored that many romanticists are saddened by the growing conviction that Pochontas did not think of Capt. John Smith as her Romeo.

But such legends die hard, as former Gov. John Garland Pollard of Virginia discovered when he asserted the Pilgrims landed in his state, not Massachusetts. As might be expected, the thunder of attacks on Mr. Pollard rattled windows in the house of representatives—where, apparently, so many legend believers have a habit of congregating. Rep. George Holden Tinkham rushed to defend the Pilgrims and his home state of Massachusetts. But house oratory, as usual, did not settle the dispute. Similarly, it has failed to turn up a satisfactory solution of other historical controversies which have recently disturbed congressional minds. They've argued where the shot that was heard around the world was fired, whether George Washington threw the silver dollar across the Rappahannock and from where the Santa Fe and Oregon trails started.

Americans, after all, don't seem to be a backward looking people. They make telescopes to attain new understanding, not to comprehend old legends. They plan ahead for television and build factories equipped for future demands. Perhaps it is well they do not linger in the past. A few years from now, maybe NRA and other similar legends will be discredited as myths by forward-looking Americans—unless tax bills help to keep such stories alive.

Glancing Backward

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Friday, April 30, 1926. The city of Baltimore, Md. for the first time in four years invoked an old law which authorized use of the public whipping post for men convicted of wife beating. James H. Kingsmore paid the penalty when he received five lashes across his bare back in the Baltimore prison yard. Warned by numerous complaints filed with city officials by parents of Marion boys who had been playing slot machines throughout the city, the operator of a high school, voluntarily removed a machine which he was operating. City officials were continuing their inquiry preparatory to launching a campaign against the machines, especially those known as vending devices.

Reports on activities of the year were given by chairman at the final meeting of the club year held by executive boards of Marion County Federation of Women's clubs. Mrs. Emil Sweney was elected an alternate to the state convention of the federation May 11-14 at Springfield.

Mrs. A. B. Wilhelm was hostess to the Qui Vive club at her home on Irey avenue.

The Art club met with Mrs. James R. Smith at her home on Franklin street. Mrs. Glenna Clevenger and Mrs. E. H. Morgan were elected delegates to the Federation of American Arts convention in Washington the week of May 9.

Mrs. Charles Aiken was elected president of the Forest Lawn Community club at a meeting held at the Forest Lawn school.

A. W. Baker, Erie yard master, was elected president of the Erie railroad employees' emergency association.

It was Sunday, April 30, 1916.

Daughters were born to Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Richardson of Leader street, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Freshwater of Park boulevard and Mr. and Mrs. Olin Burrow of St. Clair street and a son to Mr. and Mrs. Alva McEldowney of Toledo avenue.

Mrs. Charles Adams, 40, died at her home in Richmond.

Before a crowd of more than 500 the Marion Questions opened the local baseball season at Lincoln park, defeating Prospect, 13 to 3. Shrock and Hogan pitched for Marion and Lauer and Mulvane for Prospect.

Democratic Strategy May Be Boomerang

Move To Show Who Benefitted from Republican Tariff May Reopen Question in Presidential Campaign.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright, 1936, by The Marion Star

WASHINGTON, April 20—The Democrats in the senate thought they were executing a clever anti-Republican maneuver in demanding that the Vandenberg resolution, which asks for details of AAA payments above $100,000 should also include the names of large corporations receiving benefits from the tariff laws of the United States in 1924. But actually the move may prove a boomerang.

For nearly four years, the advocates of a lower tariff have been wondering why the Democrats have failed to keep their platform pledge to repeal the Hawley-Smoot tariff law, which was a Republican measure. Now as the data comes out concerning the subsidies which the tariff has given, the query will naturally arise as to why the Democratic party, with an overwhelming majority in both the senate and the house of representatives and a Democratic President in the White House, has done nothing about it.

Certainly, if the figures which the tariff commission is obliged to provide within 60 days show that American industries have been receiving subsidies, the controversy will arise during the campaign. This will revive the tariff issue at a time when the Democrats have been anxious to let it slumber, especially since such organizations as the American Federation of Labor have taken a staunch position to the effect that the protective tariff protects American labor.

The condemnation of the Hawley-Smoot tariff law, which the Democratic national convention adopted in 1922 and which Mr. Roosevelt as a candidate accepted, he said, at 100 per cent, reads as follows:

"We condemn the Hawley-Smoot tariff law the prohibitive rates of which have resulted in retaliatory action by more than 40 countries, created international economic hostilities, destroyed international trade, driven our factories into foreign countries, robbed the American farmer of his foreign markets and increased his cost of production."

"To accomplish these purposes and to recover economic liberty we pledge the nominees of this convention, and the best effort of a great party, whose founder announced the doctrine which guides us now, in the hour of our country's need, 'Equal rights to all, special privileges to none.'"

The same Democratic platform pledged the party to "a competitive tariff for revenue, with a fast-finding commission free from executive interference, reciprocal tariff agreements with other nations, and an international economic conference designed to restore international trade and facilitate exchange."

The Democrats have developed a system of reciprocal trade agreements, but not on a general basis of a "competitive tariff for revenue." They have left untouched in many instances the rates of the Hawley-Smoot law. As for an "international economic conference," the one that was called by President Hoover before he left office and held in London in 1933 was broken up by Mr. Roosevelt in July of that year. No conference has been called since that time.

Whether the retention of the protective principle and a removal of excessive tariff benefits that block international trade is or is not a wise policy is secondary at the moment to the fact that the Vandenberg resolution affords an opportunity to revive the tariff issue for the coming campaign. It would be welcome to some Republican states, where there has always been a relationship expressed on the stump between low tariffs and unemployment, and it would be welcome to other states, agricultural in particular, which want to know why the cost of the things the farmer buys is kept high through undue tariff protection, whereas the prices of farm products are not correspondingly increased. The Democrats can hardly be in the position of defending the protective tariff in the west or even assailing it in the east, for their record in accepting the Hawley-Smoot law for the last three years is bound to be a matter of discussion and there is no likelihood of any tariff revision at the present session, which is the last before the electors vote on candidates for the presidency and congress.

Behind the News

Men and Affairs Under The Washington Spotlight.

BY PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, April 30—It is too much of a White House secret ever to be fully proved, but President Roosevelt appears to have been working with a brand new confidential adviser lately. The newcomer is supposed to be a master of radio broadcasting technique, schooled in radio news and religious commentation. To him, the closest of insiders attribute a slightly different Rooseveltian style—tone exhibited in the Baltimore and New York speeches.

The world outside will recognize the new man only as Dr. Stanley High, founder of this week's new "Good Neighbor League." He has had a desk in Democratic national committee headquarters here, apparently to help in the coming campaign along the lines for which his experience has best fitted him, and he has seldom been seen around the White House.

But in addition, on the side, he is supposed to have contributed editorial assistance in preparation of the last two speech broadcasts. The youth movement material used in Baltimore and the economic wage-hour argument in New York apparently did not come from him, but he helped on the delivery style.

Who's Who lists Stanley Hoffman High as an editor, 41 years old, and recites his war aviation record, his connections with the Methodist mission in China in 1919; his career as European correspondent for the Christian Science Monitor; current events broadcaster for the National Broadcasting Co., and, finally, religious broadcasting director for NBC. In the radio trade, his NBC position was regarded as that of peacekeeper among various religious factions. His broadcasts were not what the trade would call "commercial," his sponsors being church organizations. Those who recall his radio style say it was rapid fire and scholarly.

Disaffection

Mr. Roosevelt's excellent political advisers (the nominal ones) may be giving Dr. High more credit than he deserves, but they are unmistakably nettled about his position. Frankly, they believe his connection with the campaign in both his official and unofficial capacities is a mistake, for several technical reasons.

The reaction to the Baltimore speech was not what the Democratic publicity experts would call popular. The hush in congress afterward was devastating.

There was nothing particularly wrong about the economies used by the President in New York, but economics is not an exact science. It

New York Notes

O. O. McIntyre's Diary of Fact, Fancy and Folks.

NEW YORK, April 30—Fred Stone, riding the crest again after 60, in still another amusement field, should be, and doubtless is, an inspiration to performers who believe the years have washed them up. Many believe Stone will receive the sort of adulation accorded Marie Dressler.

Two pictures catapulted him to stardom and the enormous pay that is so generously Hollywood. A candid view is that Stone as a stage player was through. His type of show had gone into discard along with his particular style of comedy. His audience appeal was largely sentimental.

However, he did not reach the end of the road with the usual Theophrastus. He was comfortably fixed and had launched his three talented daughters, Dorothy, Paula and Carol on toothy careers. He might have easily called it day and retired to a porch rocker in Forest Hills.

A character study in his short-lived play was the turning point. It whetted the studio scouts and, coupled with a rousing plug from his old friend, Will Rogers, resulted in a tempting offer. Directors soon sensed his versatility and the result was inevitable.

The Reader's Digest, which has in a short while made a snug fortune for its owner, DeWitt Wallace, breaks from the long established custom of magazines that live by quoting from others without pay. The Digest pays for everything it uses and for which it gives credit. Thus providing the unexpected checks to which writers are totally unaccustomed, Wallace's income is $105,000 a year.

No modern artist ever received such an enormous shot of publicity as Arthur William Brown in the Saturday Evening Post story by Katharine Brush. Somehow personality stories rarely immortalize the illustrious. Miss Brush's finished piece ran around 9,000 words. The magazine regretted but it must be edited to 6,000. Miss Brush protested vigorously but the magazine was adamant. The editors were sorry but they wouldn't give more than 5,000 words to El Greco or Raphael. Incidentally, Brown and James Montgomery Flagg are the youngest looking men for their years in the passing celebrity parade.

Among latest of the feminine heart draws is this time an expert billiardist. The young amateur Edmund Sousa from Cairo, Egypt, who became expert on the only table in Cairo, an abandoned one in the house of an uncle. He has been playing in tournaments in and around New York to audiences that for the first time in history have a large women attendance. They come to see him—a tall, dark and mysterious looking Oriental, as impassive as the Sphinx which was his boyhood neighbor. He has also distinguished himself in the Paris salons as a painter of portraits and landscapes.

Another lady killer, who is filling the baseball grandstands with feminine loveliness, is Jimmy Faux. Tom Yawkey's $250,000 first baseman. The Clark Gable of the diamond, he has blue eyes, brown skin, mile-wide shoulders and extraordinary dimples. The feminine clut at the exit gate to see him is like the Ziegfeld stageloor days.

Thingumabobs: Joseph P. Day, the auctioneer, who never wears an overcoat has a cold. Amy Vanderbilt is the first of the Vanderbilts to become a publicity director. Owen Wister's son, Owen Jr., and William are inseparable companions. Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean is being sought for a night club hostess-ship in the East 50's. Mrs. Arthur Somers Roche has completed her second novel since the passing of her husband. Ed Wynn grows furious if he sees his stooge is not paying strict attention to his gags. His rebukes are on the level.

Aviation Inquiry

The senate's decision to explore the question of aviation safety through its commerce committee may result in disclosures which will have far-reaching effects.

There have been hints of shakeup in personnel and organization of the bureau of air commerce before it is over. Officers of the bureau, at least, are prepared for anything.

Ever since Senator Bronson Cutting of New Mexico plucked to death in a transport plane at Kirkville, Mo., last year, air safety has been a question of major concern to senators. Cutting was a great favorite among his colleagues. His death focused attention on the bureau of air commerce and its efforts to enforce safety regulations.

A crash prompted the probe investigation. A committee of senators headed by Copeland of New York and including Johnson of California, a close personal friend of Cutting, has been paid $10,000 to do the job.

VETS' GROUPS INDORSE LEVY

Action Taken by V. F. W. and Auxiliary at Charter Presentation Meeting.

Charter for the Veterans' Post Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the post auxiliary were presented last night in a ceremony in the
I. O. O. F. hall on North Main street. A number of state and district officers were here.

In a business session members of the post and auxiliary voted indorsement of the 22 mill levy the city has placed on the ballot at the May 12 primary. The members voted to support the levy at the polls.

Another matter of interest presented to the members was possibility of bringing the 1937 state encampment of the V. F. W. and auxiliary here. Tentative plans were made to enter a bid for the encampment at the state meeting later this year at Hamilton.

Charter Presented

The charter of the post was presented by Frank M. Kirwin of Columbus, department adjutant quartermaster, to D. J. Finley, post commander, who in turn presented it to John V. Ruth, commander. The auxiliary charter was presented to Mrs. Leola Faulkner of Ashland, department auxiliary president, to Mrs. Harry G.
Baker, president of the Marion auxiliary.

Mr. Sager, newly appointed zone commander, presided for the meeting. He was introduced by Commander Ruth. During the evening talks were made by Mr. Kirwin, Mrs. Faulkner, Mr. Sager and Mrs. Baker.

Mr. Kirwin commented on the action of the post and auxiliary in indorsing the city levy. He cited the present crippled condition of the city of Columbus as a result of defeating a like levy several months ago. He also outlined the eight point program of the V. F. W.
and urged the veterans to acquaint themselves with the program of the organization and presented the possibility of Marion obtaining the 1936 state encampment.

G. A. R. Head Honored

An honorary V. F. W. member was presented by Mr. Kirwin to Francis Layton, commander of the G. A. R. post here. In brief remarks Mr. Layton expressed his appreciation.

The post and auxiliary accepted an invitation to attend Memorial day services at Epworth M. E. church Sunday, May 24.

Entertainment for the meeting consisted of a guitar duet by Margaret Finley and Shirley Rife, a ballad dance by Evelyn Sager and a dance by Betty Gant, accompanied at the piano by Mrs.
D. J. Finley.

Preceding the meeting the visiting state and district officers were entertained at a dinner at Hotel Marion by several members of the Marion post and their wives. A potluck supper closed the meeting.

individual income taxes, and Sen.

paring a substitute bill somewhat similar to LaFollette's.

Commissioner Guy T. Heverling of the Internal Revenue bureau.

The cabinet member also is to be followed by several industrial leaders, now in the capital to attend the sessions of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Criticism of the measure at the chamber's convention indicated the opinion to be expressed by the business men.

There were signs that the house bill—which falls short of the President's request for revenues—may be broadened somewhat in the senate.

The finance committee planned to consider the President's recommendations for new processing taxes, left out of the house bill.

Sheriff's Ability As Artist Brings Fugitive's Arrest

By The Associated Press
SYCAMORE, Ill., April 30.—A sheriff's artistic rendering of a magazine picture of Donald Denner,
day with coming to the Ohio state penitentiary from which he escaped 12 years ago while serving a life sentence for the slaying of his brother-in-law.

Sheriff O. A. Larson of De Kalb county arrested bemused "Edward Denner," a farmer, yesterday, and announced later that "Denner"
admitted he was the missing Denner.

A resemblance between the farmer and a picture of the escaped convict in a detective story magazine was Sheriff Larson's clue, he said. He penciled a mustache on the picture. The result convinced him "Denner" was the convict, he declared.

Sheriff Larson said Denner related that he drove away from the prison at Columbus, O., where he was a "trusty" in a truck, found work later as a carpenter in Spring Valley, Ill., and 16 months ago married Miss Mattie Kadie of De Kalb at Princeton, Ill., moving to De Kalb county with his bride.

Denner was convicted of fatally shooting John Valner, husband of Denner's sister Anna, at Valner's farm near Bloomington, O., in 1914, Sheriff Larson said.

The "climax runner" of the fusion a few hours after he slew Roscoe R. Barton, 23, in a hand to hand fight yesterday.

Papa, 28, encountered Barton on the highway near Fairport and stopped his car to investigate. As he approached, Barton drew a gun, ordered Papa into the car with him and started to drive away.

Papa grabbed for the pistol with which he was covered. Barton fired point blank, ripping a hole in the officer's abdomen.

The grid star wrestled the weapon away and sent a bullet through the gunman's head.
With the threat of finger prison,
Papa's slain foe was identified as Barton by Police Chief Sam
Kelly of Davenport, Ia., Barton's

volved in a robbery of the Davenport armory, in 1934.

WOMEN VOTERS ASK TRADE TARIFFS CUT

Reciprocal Agreements Approved as Means of Promoting World Commerce.

By The Associated Press
CINCINNATI, O., April 30.—Four items for emphasis in the 1936-37 action program of the National League of Women Voters remained today for delegates to the 12th national convention to approve, including downward revision of tariffs through reciprocal trade agreements.

Between sessions the 550 present filled into and out of a model vol-ing booth to "practice what we preach" with a voting machine in elections of officers for the next two years. The league campaigned vigorously from the early days of its organization to substitute methods for the old-type methods.

The remaining items for emphasis rounded out a 16-point program. Delegates committed themselves yesterday to take all action necessary to bring about the reforms detailed in the points when opportunities seemed best. No opposition was anticipated to speedy adoption of the four points.

In addition to the tariff item,
they were:

"Sufficient and scientifically apportioned public funds for public education;

"Units of school taxation and administration large enough for economy and efficiency; and

"Social security—unemployment compensation, old age assistance, and measures affecting children."

LEWIS FACTION GAINS IN UNION STANDING

By The Associated Press
CAHONSBURG, Pa., April 30.—
New gains were claimed today by the steel union's "rank and file" faction with the sealing in the convention of 14 lodges previously challenged.

A stiff fight occurred on the floor of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers before the members, in executive session, allowed the challenged delegates to join in the convention.

The credentials committee had recommended they be barred because the lodges were behind in dues.

The rank and file group in the main is backing the proposal of John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers and head of the national committee on industrial organization, for a militant steel unionization campaign. Lewis urged organization of the industry along industrial lines as opposed to the craft union system.

Michael Tighe, 78-year-old amalgamated worker, will place the Lewis offer before the convention but it is understood he had an alternative campaign of his own to submit.

BULKLEY-GONGWER FIGHT INTENSIFIED

By The Associated Press
CLEVELAND, O., April 30.—W.
Burr Gongwer, county Democratic leader, said he planned to mail today a certified check for $5 and a contract to U. S. Sen. Robert R.
Bulkley as an outgrowth of the fight for control of the Cleveland Democratic organization between Gongwer and Bulkley.

In a radio speech Monday Bulkley asserted Gongwer's leadership had been inefficient. Gongwer replied that tenants for the Bulkley building in downtown Cleveland had been secured "through the influence of Mr. Bulkley with the national administration."

Bulkley then said he would sell to Gongwer for $5 "all I get personally out of rentals paid by federal agencies in the Bulkley building at present or for the next 10 years."

METHODISTS TO OPEN PARLEY IN COLUMBUS

Delegates Arrive for Quadrennial Conclave Which Will Start Tomorrow.

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., April 30.—Delegates to the quadrennial conference of the Methodist Episcopal church arrived today to find their legislative hoppers filled with problems which must be settled during the 22-day meeting that opens tomorrow.

Heading the list were the question of unification with two other branches of Methodism, and consideration of a convention report of the Methodist Federation for Social Service, demanding that the conference assume leadership in social and economic affairs.

Bishop Edwin N. Hughes of Washington, the senior bishop of the church, opens the first business session.

Dr. Harry E. Ward of the Union
Theological seminary, New York, secretary of the Federation for Social Service, steered through a one-day convention yesterday a program which observers said was expected to produce bitter debate on the conference floor.

The federation program advocated church support of a plan to substitute planned social economy for the existing profit system. Conservative groups led by the Methodist laymen's conference rallied today to defeat the federation, whose members some of the conservatives labeled "Methodist reds."

Dr. M. A. Dawber of Philadelphia, rural secretary for the missionary board, and members of his federation committee prepared for presentation to the conference a memorial asking that a commission be appointed to investigate salaries paid full-time ministers.

"The Methodist church has $3,07 full-time ministers today who are paid less than $1,000 a year," he said.

NEW MANSFIELD WPA DIRECTOR APPOINTED

Watson Names H. M. Haylor
of Oberlin To Succeed
Earl A. Nist.

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., April 30.—Dr.
Carl Watson, Ohio works progress administrator for Ohio, named Harold M. Haylor, 37, of Oberlin to succeed Earl A. Nist, who resigned today as WPA director for district No. 9, which has headquarters at Mansfield.

Dr. Watson said he accepted
Nist's resignation "with regret."
Haylor since Feb. 5 has been in a special representative attached to the administrative staff of Ohio WPA headquarters. For eight years prior to that he was associated with a financial concern in New York City.

Dr. Watson said Haylor would succeed Nist tomorrow.
Nist, an attorney, resigned because of the press of other businesses.

FARMER DIES AFTER KNIFING NEAR AKRON

By The Associated Press
AKRON, O., April 30.—Sheriff J.
T. Flower of Summit county sought today a mother for a cutting tray in Northfield village which resulted in the death of Ben Bullis, 46, a farmer, and the slashing of Mrs. Irene Edwards, 38, mother of five children.

A butcher knife and a pocket knife, both bloodstained, were found on the floor of the woman's house. She was quoted by Sheriff Glenn Hotchkiss as saying Bullis
"acted goofy."

Bullis, manager of a country
estate in nearby Sagamore Hills was a close friend of Abraham Edwards, husband of the wounded woman.

Sheriff Flower reported that Mrs. Edwards said "he took me to the house and I thought he drew his finger across my throat for a joke. Then I found he had cut me with his pocket knife."

Mrs. Edwards ran to a neighbors house. Bullis was found in his auto parked in front of the Edwards house with his throat slashed. He died in a hospital three hours after the cutting.

HOSPITAL ACTION SET FOR TONIGHT

City council will meet at 7 o'clock tonight to consider ordinances rescinding its recent action changing the form of management at the Marion City hospital.

An ordinance rescinding the position of superintendent-manager, given on reading last Monday night, will be given a second and third reading. If it is passed two more ordinances will be introduced, one rescinding the position of supervisor of nurses and the other abolishing the position of superintendent of both phases of hospital management. The latter position was created to replace the other two when council voted the management change about two weeks ago.

NEW YORK ASSEMBLY KILLS SECURITY BILL

Republican Majority in Lower House Blocks Action on Lehman's Program.

By The Associated Press
ALBANY, April 30.—The Republican majority definitely killed Gov. Herbert H. Lehman's social security program in the assembly yesterday after Democratic leaders had called it a "great piece of human legislation" and Republicans had labeled it a "gigantic hoax."

Three Republicans joined the Democratic attempt to get the measure on the assembly floor, but their assistance was unavailing.
The final vote was 73 to 71, to keep the bill locked in committee.
The Democratic-controlled senate already had passed the bill.

The eight-point program sponsored by the governor would require an expenditure of about $1,000,000 by New York state this year in order to receive contributions of about $20,000,000 from the federal government.

The plan would give aid to the aged by reducing the eligible age for pensions from 70 to 65 years, and extend help to dependent children, mothers, child welfare agencies, the crippled, the deaf, the blind, and youths in need of vocational training.

If the plan had prevailed, New York would have been brought in line with 28 other states to receive benefits from the federal social security law.

DUTCH PRINCESS IS 27 YEARS OLD

By The Associated Press
THE HAGUE, The Netherlands,
April 30.—Princess Juliana observed her 27th birthday anniversary today with all The Netherlands wondering when and if the plump, vigorous heiress to the throne would marry.

The people made no secret, in public conversations, of their desire to see Juliana married. The popularity of the princess has intensified the wish for a royal wedding.

Where to find a suitable princeconsort, however, to share the famous throne of the house of Oranje-Nassau remained a difficult question to answer.

Libel Suit Next In Court Debut of Wrestlers

Everett Marshall Asks Million from Saturday Evening Post in Columbus Tribunal.

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., April 30.—They dusted off the mat in federal court today and got ready for Everett Marshall's $1,000,000 libel suit, second main event of the big-time wrestling show which has kept Judge M. G. Underwood occupied almost since he assumed the bench
a fortnight ago.

Judge Underwood, who last week
heard the Dick Shikat-Joe Alvarez breach of wrestling contract suit, agreed to hear tomorrow arguments by attorneys for the Saturday Evening Post, named with libel promoters as defendant in Marshall's suit.

Marshall, recognized in Colorado and Kentucky as the heavyweight champion, contends an article in the magazine last Dec. 14 damaged him to the extent of $1,000,000. The Post attorneys seek clarification of his complaint.

The big blond from Colorado asserted in his petition that he defeated the leading heavyweight wrestlers of the country but could not get a match with Danno O'Mahoney, champion recognized by the six defendant promoters.

These promoters he named as Jack Curley of New York, Paul Bowser of Boston, Ray Fabiani of Philadelphia, Ed White of Chicago, Joe (Toots) Mondt of Los Angeles, and Tom Parks of St.
Louis. He alleged they were members of a profit-sharing group backing O'Mahoney, since beaten by the self-same Shikat who brought the same promoters into his federal court case last week.

Marshall said the Post's article on wrestling referred to Jim London as "the only major contender for the title" held by O'Mahoney, and that this and other remarks constituted libel.

The Shikat case, once postponed,
is scheduled to come before Judge Underwood again May 12, with one or the other winning by a decision regarding the validity of a contract
Alvarez says he holds with Shikat.

CLEVELAND DENTISTS FIGHT SCHOOL CLINIC

By The Associated Press
CLEVELAND, O., April 30.—A movement to oust Dr. Harris R. C.
Wilson, director of dental work in Cleveland public schools, on the ground that he held a "philosophy of socialism," drew fire from Dr.
Richard A. Bolt, director of the Cleveland Child Health association, today.

The Cleveland Dental society's executive council initiated the movement yesterday. In letters scheduled to go out today to city and school health officials, the council said that "reappointment of Dr. Wilson be withheld by the board of education."

Dr. Wilson's annual report recommended a board of education appropriation of $40,000 to expand the present extraction clinic work so as to include filling of decayed teeth.
He said 93,000 school children here needed fillings in an average of 33 teeth each.

Chillicothe Dog Watch Gets 'Em "On the Run"

Darius (left) and Pietro, police dogs from Switzerland, are trained to pursue any running man and to grab any wrist holding a weapon. They're on guard at the Chillicothe, Ohio, federal reformatory.

Last of three stories sketching life at a federal reformatory. BY WILLIAM M. PINCKERTON

CHILICOTHE, O., April 30—The federal industrial reformatory slows down to a walk at 4.30 p. m. each day. Pietro and Darius start their guard tour at that hour. The two pioneer guard dogs of the federal prison service, who came here as an experiment two years ago, have convinced guards and inmates alike it is not safe to run across the wide prison yard while they're on duty.

Trained in Switzerland to bring down a running man and to climb a man carrying gun or club, Pietro and Darius patrol the fields of the reformatory reservation at the heels of their guards each night.

No Man Gets Past So successful have they been that eight other dogs have joined the federal prison guard staffs at institutions where large tracts of outside territory must be patrolled. No man ever has slipped past them.

If the guard sees a prowler, a word speeds the dog after him. If the man stops dead in his tracks, the dog will not attack. If he brandishes a weapon, the dog will grab his wrist.

To guards and others at rest, the big, muscular police dogs are friendly and affectionate. But a man on the run is their enemy.

Doubter Convinced Guards here tell the story of a doubter who scoffed at Pietro and Darius when they first arrived.

"You can't tell me those dogs will attack a running man," he said. Guards who had trained with the dogs in the east offered to let him experiment.

The doubter set off for a garage a short distance away. Giving him a head-start, the guard loosed his charge. The man slammed the door behind him just as the dog

Yanks Drop Indians to Third Place; Greenberg Hurt

FIRST BASEMAN FOR DETROIT SUFFERS FRACTURE OF WRIST

Giants Get Only Six Hits Off Cards' Parmelee in 17 Innings

By The Associated Press. When this major league baseball season rolls down to the World Series, the experts may point back to yesterday's game in explanation of the final result.

Most significant in a day of extraordinary happenings was Hank Greenberg's collision with young Jake Powell of the Washington Senators in which the big Detroit first baseman fractured his left wrist.

Today the Tigers were in the desperate position of having to answer the question that has been thrown at them for the past two seasons: What will happen to your club when luck breaks around?

May Recall Work. Manager Coghane was expected to recall from Milwaukee Rudy York, the young first baseman who looked so good in the Tigers camp this spring when Greenberg was sitting in New York's Bronx waiting for the management to raise his salary.

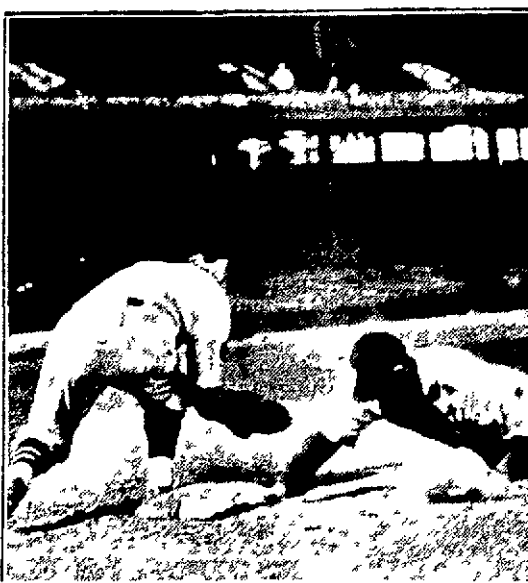

Outstanding among superlative performances in other games was Leroy Parmelee's 17-inning, six-hit victory for the Cardinals over the New York Giants in picking the Cards and the Cubs to battle it out for this year's National League pennant. The experts have agreed that the success or failure of Parmelee would be the success or failure of the Cards. Yesterday's performance should throw some light on the question.

Though he lost Carl Hubbell gave the Cards only 11 hits in the 17 frames which is pretty good pitching when the St. Louis crew faces you 60 times in an afternoon.

Pitching Performance. Other pitching performances of the day included Pete Appleton's two-hit, 7-3 victory for Washington over the Tigers. Bill Lee's four-hit, 10-0 win over the four-hit pitching of Van Lingle Munsie of the Brooklyn Dodgers and Lefty Gomez's three-hitter over the Cleveland Indians which dropped the Tribe from first to third in the American League. The score of this one was 6-1.

While so many extraordinary things were stealing the show

Joe Cronin's Boston Red Sox defeated the Chicago White Sox 8-7 and regained first place in the American League.

The game between the Phillies and the Pirates ended in an untimely manner in the eleventh inning when Pitcher Bucky Walters intentionally walked two men to fill the bases and in the process got into the habit of throwing wild and hit Gus Suhr, Pirates first baseman forcing in the winning run. The score was 10-9.

Dusty Rhodes held the St. Louis Browns to four hits for eight innings and then was asked for three hits and four runs in the ninth but the Athletics trimmed the Browns 7 to 4 for their seventh triumph of the season. The game was featured by circuit driver by Peters, Cliff and Henneley.

ASSOCIATION TEAMS IN WESTERN CITIES LEAD EASTERN NINES

Columbus To Play at St. Paul, Toledo Matched With Kansas City Blues.

By The Associated Press. CHICAGO April 30—If the outcome of the first swing through the eastern end of the American Association is a sample of what is to come, the western clubs are headed for a great season collectively.

The western teams were back to their own ballparks today awaiting tomorrow's home openers enjoying a 2 to 1 edge over the east. The Kansas City Blues were in first place with nine victories and two defeats. The rejuvenated St. Paul club followed with 10 victories in 14 starts.

And Minneapolis defending champion followed with seven wins and four defeats. Only Milwaukee failed to work up a victory margin in the initial jaunt but the Brewers came back with a draw — 6 victories in 12 games.

All of which added up to 32 decisions for the west against 16 reverses.

Burling Grimes, Louisville Colonels had the best record of the western clubs winning six and losing nine games. Columbus won four out of 13 and Indianapolis and Toledo won three each on their home grounds against six and eight defeats respectively.

The league leading Blues will go on display for the first time of the season before home fans with Toledo as the opposition. St. Paul will entertain Columbus with Indianapolis at Minneapolis and Louisville at Milwaukee.

Tigers Face Problem in Loss Of Hank Greenberg

Detroit Star To Be on Bench at Least a Month.

By The Associated Press. WASHINGTON April 30—Mickey Coghane, pilot of the world champion Detroit Tigers today faced one of his toughest managerial problems—how to win ball games without Hank Greenberg.

The bank first baseman—voted the most valuable player in the American League last year—will be out of the lineup for at least a month with the wrist fracture he suffered in yesterday's game with the Washington Nationals.

Admitting his team sustained a setback worse than a string of losses when Jake Powell fleet Washington centerfielder collided with Greenberg's outstretched arm Coghane added pitifully that the club's pitching and hitting would keep it near the top of the league.

Mickey said he was undecided whether to continue the combination of Marvin Owen at first base and English at third or to recall Rudy York who hit well with the Bengals in spring training from the minor league to watch he was farmed.

DERBY FEVER GRIPS LOUISVILLE AS RACE CLASSIC DRAWS NEAR

Grand Slam Moves Up as Weatherman Predicts Showers and Heavy Track

By The Associated Press. LOUISVILLE Ky. April 30—If you can thrill to the task of punting your way through crowded seats and packed hotel lobbies stand the porch of a burger while waiting for a horse to race, you are in for a real treat.

The Derby fever which actually grips this city today was spreading like an epidemic as railroad airplanes and automobiles poured their passengers onto the scene of the country's greatest turf classic.

The weather man refused to promise complete cooperation predicting local showers for the next three days.

Out at the track the trainers of the 15 colts and one filly expected to start in the big race stared at the heavily laden skies. Some looked worried. Others fairly beamed with joy.

Emmitt Jett, trainer of Grand Slam, was one of the big smile for the Boma ace moves up many pounds over a heavy track. If the rain continues and the going should be heavy then in all probability the Detroit owned colt will go to the post equal choice with J. E. Widener's Brevity.

Little is known of Brevity's running ability. Pete Coyne, the colt's trainer, declared he cares no reason why the heavily plied choice should not like an off track.

The horses' closely guarded in the derby barns took things easy.
